K. Cookies

Cookies help us, amongst other things, to make your visit to our website easier, more pleasant and expedient. Cookies are data files which your web browser automatically saves on the hard drive of your computer, when you visit our website.

Cookies neither damage the hard drive of your computer nor transfer your personal data to us.

We use cookies, for example, to recognise you as a registered user, without you having to login again each time. In this case, using cookies does not mean that we receive new personal data about you as an online visitor.

Most internet browsers accept cookies automatically. You can, however, make settings in your browser so that no cookies are saved on your computer, or you receive a warning message when you encounter a new cookie. You can find more information about this in the setting options of your browser.

The deactivation of cookies may, however, mean that you are not able to use all of the functions of our portal.

L. Google Analytics

We use Google (Universal) Analytics, a web analysis service of Google Inc. to design our website to meet your needs and to continually optimise our website. In this context, pseudonymised user profiles are created and small text files used, which are saved on your computer (cookies). Information about your use of this website, generated by the cookie, such as

- The browser type/version
- Operating system used
- Referrer URL (previous visited page)
- Host name of the accessing computer (IP address)
- Time of server request
- Device

are transferred to a server of Google Inc., part of the holding company Alphabet Inc., in the USA and saved there. The IP address is abbreviated by activating the IP anonymising function ("anonymizeIP") on this website before transfer within the Member States of the European Union or in other EEC states. The anonymised IP address transferred by your browser due to Google Analytics is not compiled with other data from Google. Only in exceptions is the full IP address transferred to a server of Google in the USA and abbreviated there. In these cases we ensure, by undertaking contractual guarantees, that Google Inc. maintains a sufficient level of data protection.

The information is used to evaluate the use of the website, to compile reports about website activities and to provide other services associated with the use of the website and the internet for the purpose of market research, and to designing these websites to meet your needs. This information is also transferred to third parties, if necessary, if this is specified by law or if third parties process this data on our behalf. According to Google Inc., the IP address is not linked to other data associated with the user.

Users can prevent the recording of user-related data generated by the cookie, and concerning the use of the website (incl. the IP address), by Google, and the processing of this data by Google, by downloading and installing the browser plugin available here.

As an alternative to the browser plugin, users can click on this link to prevent the recording of data by Google Analytics on the website in the future. This stores an opt-out cookie on the user's end device. If the user deletes its cookies (see the section "Cookie" above), it is necessary to click on the link again.

We would like to point out that, in the view of the European Union, the USA does not have a sufficient level of data protection – in part due to the issues mentioned in this section. Where we have mentioned in this data privacy statement that recipients of data (such as Google) have their place of residence in the USA, we will ensure, either by agreeing contractual regulations with these companies, or by ensuring the certification of these companies under the EU-US Privacy Shield, that your data is protected to a suitable level by our parties.

The legal basis for the processing of your data for this purpose is our justified interest as per Art. 6, paragraph 1 f, EU-GDPR.

M. Microsoft Clarity

We use Microsoft Clarity, a web analytics service provided by Microsoft Corporation (hereinafter referred to as "Microsoft"). Microsoft Clarity allows us, based on our legitimate interests pursuant to Art. 6(1)(f) GDPR, to analyse and improve user behavior on our website without the use of cookies. By using Microsoft Clarity, certain information about user interactions with our website is captured and analysed. This includes mouse movements, clicks, scroll activities, and keyboard inputs. This information helps us optimize the user-friendliness of our website and enhance the user experience. Upon your consent in the cookie banner, Microsoft Clarity uses cookies to store the collected data and link sessions. The information generated by the cookies about the use of our website is usually transmitted to and stored on a Microsoft server in the United States. Microsoft is committed to complying with the data protection regulations of the European Union, including the General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR). Your IP address is anonymized by Microsoft Clarity, preventing a unique assignment of your IP address to you as a user. The collected data is not merged with other data by Microsoft.

You have the right to object to the use of cookies by adjusting the settings in your browser or in the cookie banner accordingly. Our legitimate interest lies in the analysis and improvement of our website. For more information on data processing by Microsoft Clarity, please refer to Microsoft's privacy statement: <https://privacy.microsoft.com/privacystatement>.

If you click on a link to one of our social media profiles, a direct connection is generated between your browser and the server of the respective social network. By doing so, the network receives information that you visited our website with your IP address, and clicked on the link. before clicking on the respective links. In any case, the information is still linked if you login to the respective network after clicking on the link.

We also use Facebook social plugins. In this case, it is possible that the IP address of all visitors to our website could be forwarded to the servers of Facebook. The data protection provisions of Facebook apply in this case, which you can find here.

We also record your personal data if you register, for example, for an event on site or book accommodation. When doing so, we generally obtain the same data that we would get for bookings on the website.

In the event of any third-party services, we are merely the intermediate and make bookings on behalf of the service provider. We forward the data for processing the booking to the respective service provider. These service providers are responsible for the further processing of data according to the data protection law. Provided nothing else is stated, the service providers will use the data for the processing of the booking. They can also involve third parties who process the data on their behalf. Hoteliers, holiday apartment and holiday home landlords and campsite owners are also legally obliged to report you and your co-travellers to the authorities.

With third-party services, we are not responsible for the data processing of the service provider. By providing this kind of information, you explicitly authorise us to use this information in accordance with this provision and allow us to forward it to the service provider.

Please be aware that processing of data for marketing purposes is partly executed with the technical support and aid of an application of yawave AG, Hirschmattstrasse 15, 6003 Luzern, Switzerland. Further information regarding the privacy policy of yawave AG can be found here.

The legal basis for this processing of data is, on the one hand, the consent you have issued and in our justified interest as per Art. 6, paragraph 1 a and f, GDPR.

Various third-party service providers are explicitly mentioned in this data privacy statement (for example in the sections “Newsletter, “Booking mountain train tickets” and “Social Plugins”). Another service provider to whom personal data is forwarded, or who has or could have access to personal data, is our website hosting company Go4Web, Bürgerstrasse 21, CH-6005 Lucerne. ### C. Transfer of personal data abroad

We are permitted to forward your data to third-party companies abroad, if this is necessary in connection with the processing of your requests, to provide services and for marketing campaigns. These third-party companies are obliged to treat the private sphere of the user in the same way of the provider itself. If the level of data protection is deemed unsuitable in a country, according to the EU General Data Protection Regulation (EU-GDPR), we will ensure that your personal data is protected at all times in accordance with the EU-GDPR, by concluding a corresponding contract.

Various third-party service providers and their places of residence have already been mentioned in the section above ("Forwarding of data to third parties"). Some of the third-party service providers mentioned in this data privacy statement have their place of residence in the USA (see above). Further details about the transfer of data to the USA can be found in the section "Google Analytics."

We hereby point out that we reserve the right to request proof of identity and that, in the event of the deletion of your data, the use of our services may not be possible, or may not be possible in full.

Consent about particular types of data processing can be revoked at any time, with effect for the future.

Please note that, according to law, certain data has to be stored for a particular period of time. This data therefore has to remain saved until these periods of time have expired. We block this data in our system and only use it to meet legal requirements (for details about this, please see the section "Storage of data" below).

E. Data security

We take suitable technical and organisational safety measures, which seem appropriate to us, to protect the data about you we have saved from manipulation, partial or complete loss and unauthorised third-party access. Our safety measures are continually adapted in line with the developments in technology.

If you register as a customer with us, access to your customer account is only possible after entering your personal password. You should always treat your payment information as confidential and close the browser window when you have ended communication with us, in particular if you share the computer with other people.

We also take the protection of data in our own company very seriously. Our employees and the service providers commissioned by us are obliged to maintain confidentiality and to comply with the legal provisions concerning data protection. Furthermore, they are only granted access to personal data if necessary.

F. Storage of data

We only save personal data for as long as necessary,

- To use the afore-mentioned service within the scope of our justified interest;
