The Open-ended collection represents a collaborative effort between Lawson Fenning and Matthieu Lambert, a French designer based in Los Angeles. The collection combines a variety of materials, including ceramic, wood, and brass, resulting in a harmonious blend of light fixtures, side tables, and sculptural bowls that are both eclectic and cohesive.

The inspiration lies in the interplay between the French Alps and the California desert landscape of Joshua Tree. The organic shapes and colors of the materials serve as an imaginative interpretation of the unpredictability and constant change inherent in these natural environments.
