Murphy Finds An Old Ticket

Village Trustee Michael J. Murphy. of North Tarrytown looking some souvenirs, yesterday, upon an old ticket, one of the fancy type that was popular years ago with organizations which held picnics, dances and other affairs here. The one he found was for the "Grand Celebration and Picnic." of the old Tarrytown Social Club which was an outstanding organization years

The affair was held at Beekman's Grove, which was at the end of Howard Street in North Tarrytown, on Sept. 1, 1890, 56 years ago. The tickets sold for 50 cents which price admitted according to its wording "Gent and Ladies." Noting the names of the men who served on the committee which is listed on the ticket, it is a coincidence that Mr. Murphy is the only one of the nine members living today.

The others whose names appeared were Timothy Shea, Thomas Niland, Michael Woods, Patrick Burns, George Salter, James H. Murphy who was a well known blacksmith, James Lawn, one-time North Tarrytown Village president and Patrick Gorman.

Firemen Hold Second Class

White Plains-"Firefighting is a battle. It's warfare," declared James Deasy of Albany, former battalion chief of the New York Fire Department and instructor at Delehanty Institute.

Mr. Deasy addressed a large crowd of Eastchester fire fighters at the White Plains High School auditorium last night in the second night session of the three-day Fall training institute sponsored by the Westchester Fire Chiefs Emergency Plan.

"Firefighting, like war, cannot be conducted with any assurance of success unless a plan of operation has been devised beforehand," Mr. Deasy continued. "Size-up is extremely important factor, for on it you base subsequent op-

He outlined this three-point rogram of fire fighting: 1. Locate your fire. (You must not guess.) 2. Confine it to the smallest possible area and block it off. 3. Put it out.

Acting Battalion Chief Harry rwin, supervising engineer of the New York Fire Department, presented a technical address on firefighting equipment. He emphasized, however, that many fires are fought successfully before they start. He stressed the importance of regular drills and the solution of hypothetical firefighting problems on paper or at round-table discussions. A display of firefighting apparatum was held this morning in the ounty Center parking area and full-scale firefighting tests, using various extinguishing agents, were to be held this afternoon

Local Author Writes Satire Greek Attacks Boat Club to Of Capital in Atomic Age

By EDGAR G. GREENE

Pat Frank of 36 Paulding Avenue in his first novel, "Mr. Adam." published this week by J. P. Lip pincott, gives the first satirical description of official Washington in the atomic age.

Taking the imaginary premise that all the men in the world are sterilized by the explosion of an atomic plant in Mississippi that wiped the state of Bilbo and Rankin off the map, Mr. Frank makes frequent mention of Tarrytown, where, according to his story, Homer Adam, the only male who escaped the effects of the disaster, is found when he becomes a father.

Then, Mr. Frank, who worked as a newspaperman in Washington for many years, gives the reader an amusing insight into the workings of governmental red tape and bureaucracy as the Army, the National Research Council (made up of physicists) and the National Refertilization Project (headed by doctors) carry on a three-sided war for this one-man hope of the

Bewildered and Unhappy

As the governmental war rages over and about him, Mr. Adam, who has been taken away from his wife and child at Tarrytown and removed to Washington for 'safe-keeping," is bewildered and unhappy. All he wants is to be left alone and allowed to return to his home at "Rosemere."

Mr. Frank, who is serious about his satire, tells of an imaginary situation, but his picture of ofgency sometimes seems too true to be comfortable.

Pat Frank, since his return last Winter from Europe, where he worked as a war correspondent, has devoted his entire time to writing. In addition to his novel. Borden Aide he has turned out a number of latest issue of Collier's.
