JUDGMENT OF THE SUPREME COURT.

In the Banco Court to-day, his Honor Chief Justice Stawell delivered the judgment of the court in the case of The Queen v.

ille, occurred yesterday evening on the Atara's and Hamilton Ballway, about ten miles from Ararat, near Mr John Crouch's farm. A beliast train belonging to the contractors' Messus Overend and Robb, was coming along at a good , see with two Government tracks in froat of the engine and six or seven bullast trucks behind, when a young horse tried to cross the line immediately in front. It was knocked down under the trucks, which were thrown off the line. The engine followed and came to a sundstill right across the rails. The tender was thrown over on its side. The beliast trucks were broken up more or less, and scattered to the right and left. On these trucks were thirty or more navvies returning to their homes. Of these, two were killed, and nine of ten seriously injured. Mr Willmott, from whom I have this account, is superintendent of trains for the contractors. Ho was on the engine, but saw anothing of the cause of the accident, and knew nothing of it until he found hisself on the ground covered with the wood from the partly overturned tender. Ho is comparatively uninjured. He reports that there were four persons on the engine besides himself, including engineer Dodd and stoker Fanning. All of them escaped with little more tran a severe shaking. Mr Law, the strucks were and buggy were at once placed at his disposal, and he came in as fast as he could for surgical aid. A second buggy was despetched by fir Matheson. Mr Law, turgeon, set off within two minutes after receiving the news for the scene of the disaster. The stationmaster, Mr Reed, had a Government engine and frain on the way in less than a quarter of an hour from the report arriving in Ararat. The scene when the train arrived was a very sadone. The train arrived as half-past ten with the bodies of the two men who had a new strength of the scene when the train arrived was a very sadone.
