

POST-IT NOTES

Do YOU know that Post-it notes leave a residue of adhesive when you remove the note? These "self-stickum" notes are being used on books, periodicals, documents, etc., etc., etc.

PLEASE think before you use them, and do not use them on valuable materials, or even on--or as book markers in--reference materials.

There will be a reckoning! Dirt will adhere, pages of books may stick together, and books may stick to their neighbors on the shelf.

Post-it notes are a great convenience but--as with Scotch-tape--we will wish we had not used them when the damage they cause begins to show up!

Submitted by Deborah Evetts