It is the responsibility of sellers to ensure that the actions they undertake are not in violation of established laws. Prior to auctioning an item on eBay, you must take affirmative steps to ensure that the item you are selling does not violate any intellectual property rights. The fact that others may be selling products that infringe Ammodor LLC's intellectual property rights does not give you the right to do so. Similarly, the fact that a product is being sold on eBay is in no way a guarantee that it is a genuine, authorized Ammodor LLC product.

Q: When is it OK for me to sell an Ammodor product?

A: It is legal to re-sell a genuine Ammodor product that you purchased, in its original, unaltered form in the territory in which you bought it and you may use Ammodor LLC's trademarks and copyrighted material to describe such a product. You should be aware purporting to be an authorized distributor or reseller of Ammodor LLC products when you do not have authority from Ammodor LLC to do so, is illegal. Further, you cannot use copyrighted photographs of Ammodor's products to promote the sale of the item and you cannot produce an unauthorized copy of the genuine product and offer it for sale nor customize a Ammodor product that modifies any of its trademarks (such as its logo) or packaging configurations.

Q: Can I re-post an auction once it has been removed?

A: If you re-post an item that has been removed, you may be viewed as willfully breaking the law, which may subject you to civil and possibly criminal liability for your continued infringement. Civil penalties may include statutory damages and recovery of attorneys' fees.

Q: Can I use Ammodor LLC's trademarks, pictures, images or words to improve my listing?

A: No. Anyone who uses Ammodor LLC's marks inappropriately, without our permission, is liable for trademark infringement. Anyone who produces, copies, distributes or displays Ammodor LLC copyrighted materials such as text, product descriptions and photographs without our permission is liable for copyright infringement. Older products may instead feature a small 3" round full color logo decal in the lower righthand corner of the backside.
